

Abstract

Described is a system for detecting toxic levels of a contaminate in a monitored area. The system controls an air evacuation device that operates in response to 5 the detection of a predetermined level of contamination. The system also acts to deactivate appliances that may be contributing to the level of contamination. In addition, the system alerts local emergency units with a pre-recorded message of the emergency situation.

10